

Winter

Boundless fun and action

There's no need to be a skier to appreciate the mountain world in winter. You can take the cable cars to the bewitching peaks, explore the 31 miles (50 km) of snow-cleared hiking paths and enjoy the view and the mountain sun in a deckchair at the top terminal. But if you are a genuine winter sportsman Füssen is the right place for you. Here begins the Vitates Land, which extends beyond the Austrian border and comprises 82 cable railways and ski-lifts. Experience it! Skiing equipment, sledges, ice skates and everything else you need can simply be hired on the spot.

A winter fairy tale

Winter is the quiet season and precisely for that reason a good time to visit Füssen. The palaces, covered in snow, display their romantic aspect, a ride by horse-drawn sleigh through the winter forest makes fairy tales come true, and a mulled wine at the cheerful Christmas Market (December) is an experience you should definitely not miss.

Southern European flair in the Reichenstrasse

The clock tower of the High Palace

Shopping as the mood takes you

Enjoy the town's special charm while strolling through the town and taking a look at the shops: that, too, is something that is especially enjoyable in Füssen. Far from the roar of the traffic, you can enjoy the atmosphere of the Reichenstrasse, wander down crooked lanes and discover many a fine souvenir. Culinary delights and typical beer gardens all inclusive, of course.

City Tour

1 The Reichenstrasse
Historical patricians' houses, huddling side by side, line the main shopping street in the pedestrian precinct, which is identical with the route of the earlier Roman road Via Claudia Augusta.

2 The Town Fountain at the upper end of the Reichenstrasse shows St Magnus, Füssen's patron saint. At the fountain a narrow metal strip has been let into the street paving to recall the earlier route of the Via Claudia Augusta in this area.

3 The High Palace (Hohes Schloss)
The former residence of the Augsburg prince bishops, with unique illusionist paintings on the façades of the courtyard, is one of the most important late gothic castle complexes in Germany. It now houses the Town Gallery of Paintings and a branch of the Bavarian State Collections of Paintings, where late gothic and Renaissance works of art are on display.

4 5 St Mang Monastery and Basilica
The former Benedictine monastery goes back to the 9th century. It was given its present baroque style by the Füssen architect Johann Jakob Herkomer. Today the historical rooms house the municipal authorities and the Füssen Heritage Museum. For 50 years summer chamber music and jazz concerts have been held in the magnificent Prince's Hall. The former monastery church and present-day parish church is the largest and most impressive of Füssen's baroque churches. The crypt is thought to go back in its architectural history to the times of St Magnus and houses Bavaria's oldest fresco.

The Füssen Heritage Museum

Archaeological finds and art treasures have provided evidence of 1000 years monastery history. The splendid baroque rooms, which include the Prince's Hall, give some idea of the former monastery's wealth. The museum also boasts one of the finest collections of historical lutes and violins in Europe. In the Anna Chapel, which can be reached over the museum, is the impressive Death Dance cycle by Jakob Hiebeler (1602), the oldest of its kind in Bavaria.

6 Holy Ghost Hospital-Church
The richly decorated rococo façade of the Holy Ghost Hospital Church depicts St Florian as a help in preventing fires (the previously gothic church was burnt down in 1733) and St Christopher, who, as the patron saint of raftsmen, has his appropriate place here on the mighty River Lech.

7 The path along the banks of the River Lech runs upstream to the district of Bad Faulenbach and downstream to Lake Forggensee. During a walk you repeatedly catch sight of fine views of the river, which up into the 19th century was an important traffic and trading route navigated by rafts.

8 The Franciscan Monastery
The venerable monastery buildings with the baroque St Stephan's Church are situated on a small hill above the River Lech from where there is a magnificent view of the medieval town centre. Next to them is the old St Sebastian Cemetery 9 with historical gravestones, parts of it bordering on the old town wall.

10 The area of the present-day Bread Market is thought to have been the origin of the medieval town. Today it is here that the Lute-Makers Fountain recalls the historical importance of Füssen as the "Cradle of Lute-Making" in Europe. In the enchanting lane called Brunnengasse 11 is the house where the famous baroque sculptor Anton Sturm once lived.

12 The Schrankenplatz once served as the town's corn market. The late gothic Corn House is nowadays a popular meeting point. Opposite stands the former administration office.

Shopping and Culinary Delights

The romantic flair of Füssen's medieval centre invites you to go on journeys of discovery into the past, but also on a leisurely walk through the shops. Souvenirs and handicrafts from the region, Bavarian costumes, sports equipment, international fashion brands – the shops and boutiques have something to offer every guest. Spend a break in between in one of the many pavement cafés, which lend an almost Italian ambience to Füssen's Old Town in the summer. Or you can pamper yourself with culinary specialities from the Bavarian cuisine. Parking is no problem. Füssen has 1500 parking spaces for cars and coaches in the town centre, and there are other large car parks at lakes Forggensee, Hopfensee, Weissensee and at the Neuschwanstein Festival Theatre.

White sausages (Weißwürste mit Brezen)
White sausages (veal) with pretzels and sweet mustard go down well with wheat beer.

White beer radish (Bier-Rettich)
Salted white radish with (chive) bread and salad.

Apple strudel (Apfelstrudel)
Apples wrapped in sweet strudel pastry with vanilla ice cream and/or whipped cream.

Knuckle of pork (Schweinshaxe)
Roast pork with a bread dumpling and cabbage salad.

Rothenburg ob der Tauber
The medieval appearance of this little town bewitches every visitor. The wall encircling the town, for example, is still preserved, providing the perfect setting for the gothic and Renaissance gabled houses (about 155 miles, 250 km).

Romantic Road

The Romantic Road is one of Germany's most popular tourist routes. On a distance of only 217 miles (350 km), there are tourist attractions one after the other like beads on a chain.

Augsburg
This once so powerful city under the merchant family of the Fuggers is historically closely connected with Füssen. Even today it is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishopric and has sights from many epochs to offer its visitors (about 62 miles, 100 km).

Wieskirche
This rococo church (1746-1754) is a UNESCO World Heritage site and should be a stop on every travel route. Seldom have cheerfulness and devoutness been combined more beautifully than in the light-flooded interior, which can also be enjoyed during one of the frequent concerts (about 16 miles, 25 km).

Excursions

Ideal for day-trips

With its unmistakable ambience and the wide variety of accommodation available, Füssen is the ideal starting-point for discovering the beauty of southern Germany. The best places can easily be reached on a day-trip.

Herrenchiemsee Palace
(about 90 miles, 145 km) – Can be easily reached by car.
In the middle of Bavaria's largest lake Chiemsee there is Ludwig II's unfinished palace. It was built in the style of Versailles, uses the whole island as a palace park and can only be reached by a romantic boat trip.

Kempten
(about 28 miles, 45 km) – Can be easily reached by car.
Kempten, the metropolis of the Allgäu, is one of Germany's oldest towns, which fact is proved not only by the "Cambodunum" archaeological park.

Munich (about 71 miles, 115 km) – hourly train connection.
Hofbräuhaus, Oktoberfest, Olympia Centre, Deutsches Museum (for science and technology) and the internationally renowned collections of paintings in the three Pinakothek galleries make Bavaria's capital one of the cities in Germany with the most visitors.

Garmisch-Partenkirchen and the Zugspitze
(about 43 miles, 70 km) – Can be easily reached by car.
This pleasant town is one of the favourite meeting points for the jet set and is situated at the foot of Germany's highest mountain, the Zugspitze. From here its almost 9842 feet (3000 m) high peak can be reached by rack railway, or you can take the cable car from Ehrwald (Austria) past the imposing West Wall or the Eibsee cable railway from Grainau at lake Eibsee.

Experience more

Anyone coming to Füssen should have plenty of time to spend. There is so much to discover here. A fantastic mountain world, mysterious lakes and, of course, cultural highlights. Ottobeuren, for example, with one of Germany's most important baroque monastery churches, is only 40 miles (65 km) away. And to Kempten, one of the oldest towns in Germany with the archaeological park "Cambodunum", it is a mere 28 miles (45 km). But in between there are many large and small sights. From the typical hayloft and the first edelweiss to a visit to a genuine Allgäu dairy and the many local customs which have been kept up here.

Take your time. For to see a lot you don't always need to travel very far...

Innsbruck
(about 74 miles, 120 km)
– Can be easily reached by car.
Twice, in 1964 and 1976, the capital of the Tyrol hosted the Winter Olympics. The opportunities for shopping, the rich cultural life and the Old Town decorated with its many oriel windows, the Ottoburg and the Golden Roof also deserve a few medals.

Oberammergau
(about 28 miles, 45 km) – Can be easily reached by car.
This holiday resort is world-famous for its Passion Play. Yet the numerous house-wall paintings, called Lüftlmalereien, and the artistic wood carvings are themselves worth a visit.

Lindau
(about 143 miles, 230 km) – Can be easily reached by car.
Discover the only Bavarian town on Lake Constance: Lindau. It is popular for its historical Old Town flair, round trips by ship and aquatic sports on the lake and a fantastic view of the Bregenz Forest (Austria) and the Swiss Alpine peaks on the other side (distance: 62 miles, 100 km). Detours to the flower island of Mainau are possible via Meersburg.

Linderhof palace
(about 31 miles, 50 km) – Can be easily reached by car.
This palace is also by Ludwig II, and for many Ludwig fans it is even the finest. The Hall of Mirrors, the Palace Park with its Moorish Kiosk and Peacock's Throne as well as the artificial grotto with a wave machine, through which the king was rowed in his shell boat, are some of the exceptional sights.

Legoland Obergünzburg
(about 68 miles, 110 km) – Can be easily reached by car.
Legoland – the super attraction, not just for children. In a 60-hectare park a miniworld has been built up using over 50 million Lego building blocks. There are children's driving schools, Jungle-X-peditions, open-air theatres, the Journey through Time and much, much more. Simply fantastic!

Suggestions for tours

Please also note the following tips:

- Use only bicycles that are in good mechanical order.
- Only ride along forest and Alpine roads which are sufficiently wide (2 m/2 yards). (To protect sensitive natural areas, avoid erosion and damage to the vegetation)
- Take along a few medical requirements and suntan lotion.
- Don't forget a repair kit, pump, cleaning rags and a cloth to clean your hands with.
- For mountain-bike tours it is essential to wear a helmet. A cap to protect you from the sun is also useful.
- Hikers have right of way.
- Show consideration for animals and plants.
